Race Is Between Giants and Phillies

Pirates and Cubs are Practically Out of the Contest for the Plag This Senson-Real Pitching Keeps the Giants Up in Front-Sport Gossip. - By E. W. COCHRANE -

ANSAS City, Mo., July 28 .- Those . The dope handed out by the scribes of the two big towns was that Clarke's crew might rudely jolt the Giants' pennant prospects, although there was no chance in a four game series to kick them out of the lead. They were anything but joited. They simply put the Pirates almost out of the running for the coveted fing.

Phillies Their Rivals.

When the Clarke crew invaded Manhattan they were just 13 games behind the Gints. They awoke with a severe headache to find themselves 17 games behind McGraw's men and a short distance back of the Cubs, who are figured entirely out of the race by those experts alleged to have accurate dope on the Evers machine. Thus it appears up to the Phillies, who are not going at top speed, and McGraw's men to fight it out for the championship.

Real Pitching Does It.

McGraw is fortunate in that Mar-quard, Mathewson, Teareau and De-marce, four of the best filingers in the marce, four of the best filingers in the parcht organisation, have just rounded to form and are traveling at top speed. These mea, showing even more class than last season and especially at this stage of the race, are keeping the Glants out in front.

Holding the slugging Pittsburg club to two hits, with Hans Wagner in the lineup, is by no means an easy task. Yet this is what Marquard accomplished, With that kind of pitching the Glants never will be headed.

Clark Griffith says the Washington irresistible Glants have cracked the pennant hopes of the Pirates of dope handed out by the scribes to two hig towns was that Clarke's might rudely joit the Glants' penders of the Nationals. But as far as 1813 is concerned, there does not seem to be a

Next season Griffith will face the unpleasant task of inducing a baseball prima donna to sign a contract. Waiter Johnson will have fulfilled his present contract this fall and it is rumored that he will demand $19,000 a year. However, this is by no means a high price when the amount paid Ty Coob is considered. Johnson certainly is worth as much as Cobb.

is worth as much as Cobb.

It is reported in St. Louis, from which place many a wild rumor comes which place many a wild rumor comes that Roger Bresnahan is likely to succeed "Wild Bill" Dahlen as manager of the Brooklyn team. In fact the report slates that Murphy and Ebbetis are trying to arrange a deal. It will be necessary to give up Rucker. Whost and another star to get Roger, which would mean the trading of the Brooklyn club for a pilot and would leave Roger in a bad fix. And what will Murphy do for a pilot when he ties the tinware to Evers?

Being a wise young man. Willis Ritchie is receiving all the bids of rival managers for his Labor day fight without hinting where he will box. This is a good idea. When he gets what he thinks will be the highest offer he will raise it a few thousand and the promoter will have to come through. Indicating that his few mouths' visit with Billy Nolan did him no harm.

Barrow Has Scheme to Distribute Taent

Will Pool Players of International League and Let Managers of Clubs)raw for Best Men.

BY W. J. MacBETH.

Tow, the hustling president of the international league, is the original league, is the original league. It is almost impossible to discuss the same from him.

inal "Bull Mooser" of organized baseball. He is thoroughly progressive in his views and actions; and he wields the Big Stick with determination and foresight. Under his regime the international league has prospered and minor baseball in general has shared that prosperity.

To the efforts of Barrow is largely due the fact that the three most powerful minor leagues are graded higher than had bee nihe case before he assummed office. The more exalted rating carried with it any number of advantageous privileges. The class A. Aclubs are not only better protected in every way—but the new order of things made compulsory a revision of rating and privilege all the way down the line, from the two major elecuits to the most obscure "brush" organizations. the most obscure "brush" organizations. In short a new working agreement had

The players of the International league next spring will be pooled at the spring schedule meeting after they have all been put under contract. The various magnates will cast lots for first choice. They will draw for the various prizes of the circuit. Barrow believes that in this way and only in this way will it be possible to distribute the talent as evenly as possible among the talent as evenly as possible among the various club owners. He believes that such a course will result in a much better balanced organization. That every feam will have a chance for the pennant and that the resulting closer competitions should prove more interesting to fandom in general and more remunerative to the magnates. If the international lengue club owners have the nerve to indorse the scheme of their president it will at least assure a fine trial of the proposed remedy for many of the present drawbacks of the game.

Competent Talent Scarce.

Barrow's theory appears a most sound one. So far it is only theory.

If it should stand the acid test in the minor league it is a certainty it would be welcomed in the big show. There is if he thought it would serve after to help the lender win a game from him. It is almost impossible to dis ranjor lengue class from the bushes. Taleat has to be developed. There is admirth of material—not enough good dayers to so round. And naturally miner to go round. And naturally minor league clubs with something o sell profer to do business with the decess all major outfits not because te murket is any better but because of the fact that their stars are mor likely to be turned back again at sme sort of sound profit.

Lots of Embryo Stars

Every hig league club has raft of embryo stars "covered up" as in emergancy reserve. Nothing can le done to stop it. Players who might help the weaker clubs are kept on the benches of the flag contemers or planted out somewhere in such a manner that they are sufe from schemes of tivals.

her that they are sufe from schemes of rivals.

If it should be proved by file trial that Ed Barrow's idea is practical then would be solved not only one of the greatest pushes of the pomoters, but one of the greatest ills of the players as well. By the same stroke would be cancelled the necessary evil of the reserve clause, which has threatened congressional investigation of baseball as a trust. Baseball contracts In short a new working agreement had to be framed; a more uptodate peace pact, as it were.

Premises Radieni Changes.

Barrow has already done quite enough for minor league basehall to establish his name as a real champion of the cause. But he is not a man who is content to live on reputation. He purposes next year to inaugurate the most radical changes in the hope of solving the principal disadvantages under which the big family of the national pastime now tolks. Barrow has the nerve to try a scheme which, if muccessful, is bound to do no less than revolutionize the administration of the game.

The players of the International league next spring will be pooled at the exist.

Rucker an Example.

Take the case of any star hall player who is so unfortuate as to be a member of a poor club. Rucker, of Brooklyn, for the past five years, is a filting example. Brooklyn could not afford to pay him as much as could—say—New York. There was absolutely no hope for the future. Bound band and foot to the Dodgers, no ray of world's series sunshine broke through to cheer him.

It should he the heat thing in the series sunshine broke through to cheer him.

It should be the best thing in the world for players if they were put up to be drawn each season. There would be far more novelty to the life, a better chance of general advancement in salary because of ever changing interest of fandom and less likelihood of discontent in the ranks. It might come hard at first to give up old idols of years. We all would grieve to see the gallant Matty go to Chicago. But we might learn after a while to tolerate a Hans. Wagner or Johnny Evers in his stead. Of course the main objection to such a plan would come from the champions who consider the world's series prize theirs by right of habit. Connie Mack and John McGraw should not be expected to go into ecstscies over Barrow's scheme. But even at that these grafty pilots could prove their true worth by sitting in at the draw and he harmerine home. be welcomed in the big show. There is no more discouraging element in the promotion of major leagus baseball had been been in a first than the seeming inability of second division clubs to secure competent talent. The New American club is a very good ilustration of this. In the last five years Frank Farrel has spent fortunes trying to build up a losing club. Today it is right where it was in 1988—away back in the ruck. All his money has been thrown away. There is absolutely no sentiment in baseball. Not a rival manager would be seen at the champions who consider the world's series prize theirs by right of habit. Connte Mack and John McGraw should not be expected to go into estacles over Barrow's scheme. But even at that these crafty pilots could be their true worth by sitting in at the draw and by hammering home their ideas to a new broad of athletes each spring. As a true sporting proposition the new order of things would give the first line on real managerial ability. Even balanced fields would eliminate the element of luck.

anateurisa trick of volleying with the left instead of cutting down the number of his deliveries and infusing more power into the remainder. There never was an amateur yet—at least a clever one—who did not like to show how many times he could pop a left between an opponent's eyes and in the generality of cases these repeated visitations.

ations carry no more sting than jabs of a powder puff.

There was less of this kind of thing

There was less of this kind of thing about McAllister when he fought La Grande than there was in his other professional matches and it may be that he will abandon the practice gradually. He has muscle and leverage and looks like the kind of a fellow that might administer hurtful blows if he would only time and measure his man according.

Anyhow the coming event will be McAllister's official tryout as a professional. It will be an affair in which he can't afford to make any mistakes, for Petroskey is the proprietor of a punch that is likely to end the entire proceedings the instant it lands.

San Francisco in many years, is to be put to a thorough test at last. Bob is signed to meet Sailor Petroskey in a 20 round bout at Coffroih's Eighth street arens on the night of August 3, and win or lose, the experience is sure to prove an exciting one.

Many Advisers for McAllister.

It took a long time for Bob McAllister to make up his mind to tackle the 20 round game, but that was more the fault of all too apprehensive friends than anything else. That "hundred millien dollar baby" we hear of occasionally was never coddled along as was ex-amateur champion Bob McAllister, and it is little wonder that he ter, and it is little wonder that he kicked over the traces in the long run. One adviser was sure that it would be a fatal mistake if Bob were allowed to sign up for anything longer than four rounds until he had met all manners of good appearants and become ner of good opponents and become thoroughly seasoned to the rigors and excitement of milling in public. Another thought that may be after a year or two Boh might extend his limit to six rounds, while another was suspected of being a snake in the grass because he bluntly hinted that if Boh could not undertake a 18 round journey he ought to ask for reinstatement as an amateur.

Now Bob is booked for a 29 round trip and the public, which practically turned its back upon him because of his apparent partiality for bob-tailed bouts, is ready to take him to its arma again. Wonder in Amateur Days.

In his amateur days McAllister was surely a wonder. Every bout that he figured in was woefully one-sided and when it finally began to appear that a match would never be found for him among "gentlemen boxers," the hand-lers of professional matches began to set their snares for the dashing Olymset their snares for the dashing Olympian.

McAllister's last appearance as an amateur was at the Olympic club when the veteran Australian pugilist. Tommy Tracey, brought Ted Darbyshire all the way from Portland, Ore., to take a crack at Bob. For all that Darbyshire accomplished he might have been some yokel taking his initial lesson in snarring. It was quite a relief when Tracey, with chagrin stamped all over his face, leaped up on the ring ledge and waved a towel as an indication that the thing had gone far enough. waved a towel as an indication that the thing had gone far enough.

Then came the announcement that McAllister had resolved to turn "pro," and there was a lot of speculation as to who would be his first opponent. He met Willie Meehan, at Oakland, and crowded more punch into each three minute spall of boxing than is sometimes seen in an entire eventure of
